

MEXICO RAISES
ARMY OF YAQUIS

Chief Mori, General Yaqui, has been made a brigadier general in the army of the state of Sonora, and already some 1000 of the military hill fighters who backed him in his defense of Caranua have been recruited to serve under him.

It is the plan of the Liberal Constitutionalists, according to information just received in El Paso, to get into the army as many of the new brigades as possible, and to use the strength of the Yaquis since the time of Cortez.

The Yaqui "rebels" are being moved to the south and east as fast as they can be taken into the service. Their officers are being, through discipline and the inauguration of a daily check, to hold them together.

In the past the Yaquis have proved themselves as unreliable in quiet times as they are redoubtable in battle. When there is no fighting to do, they are as good as dead, but when they are, or what obstacles stand between them and their goal, they are as good as dead.

The advancement of chief Mori to high rank is expected not only to add to the Yaqui problem in Sonora, but also to make military service away from the Yaqui valley more popular with the Indians.

GEN. OREGON
EYES ARMY

Mexico City, Mex., June 4.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, commander of revolutionary forces during the revolt which ousted the Carranza administration, has retired from the army, according to the newspaper Excelsior.

Press dispatches say Gen. Manuel Duenas, former governor of Guadaluajara, who was arrested during the revolution, has been freed on orders from provisional president Adolfo de la Huerta.

Gen. Jacinto B. Trevino, revolutionary leader, has been named secretary of industry and has turned over the command of his forces to Gen. Francisco Cosío Robles.

Veracruz, Mex., June 4.—Four new cases of Bubonic plague were discovered here today. Three of the victims were soldiers and the fourth was an aged laundress.

The woman died after being taken to the detention hospital. Another death occurred at the hospital.

Buildings on the municipal dock and nearby structures were buried in an effort to eliminate possible centers of infection there.

PANIC FOLLOWS
STREET CAR FIRE

Fire in a Highland Park street car at 11:50 o'clock Thursday night, resulted in a small panic among the passengers, in which 7 of them were injured. A short circuit in the controller box caused flames and smoke to burst from it and in a few minutes the car was on fire.

W. D. Cromer, 1219 Dakota street, jumped from the car as the lights burned out, and pulled the trolley pole from the wire, thus cutting off the current and preventing possible serious injury to the passengers.

The fire department was summoned and extinguished the flames.

Private Meyer Goldman, Seventh regiment, was on duty as a private guard when the car was on fire and succeeded in forcing the rear door open. He sustained painful bruises as passengers surged through the car toward the door in their panic.

In addition to Goldman, the following persons were injured: Mr. Bernard, 1109 Cotton avenue, bruised and cut.

C. L. Newberry, 1231 Dakota avenue, known by name.

Pat McLaughlin, 2106 Mohle street, bruised on head.

Edward Rasmussen, 1251 Granada street, chin lacerated and front teeth knocked out.

An unidentified woman and a small boy were also slightly injured.

With the exception of the last named two all were treated at the police emergency hospital and sent to their homes.

straight, and in spite of what people say he is really a poor man.

And the man he is talking about says the same things about him.

There seems to be a tacit understanding among them all to tell the truth about each other on every point except money. They are all anxious to make the point that there is not a single thief in Mexican political life.

On the other hand, the lower class, the common people, who have been putting up with revolutions for years and years and are always seeing their country go downhill instead of improving, unless a bitter skepticism when the words "unselfishness" and "patriotism" are mentioned.

Two hundred thousand Mexicans get their living by making civil war and taking part in revolutions, forcing on the rules of government that fall and on the insular fronts of governments that come into being.

"Liberty" Must Be Preserved.

Each people speak in all seriousness when they say that "liberty must be preserved" or allege that "the constitution is being violated."

But the rest of the population, which includes millions of people, either says nothing, with that significant silence of the Indian, or else it says: "Liberty! Constitution! Mere pretenses for a new grab! Just ways of making a living! All alike! All thieves! and in this sweating generalization it includes everybody in politics, pardoning no one till he has come to some tragic death."

The Mexican people, which has a certain literary instinct and imagination, invent all kinds of ingenious and interesting stories to weak vengeance on the powers that be. Its hitting satire respects not even death. The miserable population has suffered so much and has so many accounts to settle!

Sends Brother to Death.

The story of what happened to Don Jesus Carranza, after his death, is a cruel but interesting and witty tale. This brother of Don Venustiano came to a tragic end. While Carranza was shut up in Veracruz by the troops of Zapala and Villa, he sent his brother on an expedition to the south of Mexico. The very account which Don Venustiano had given Don Jesus for months, was in reality and made him prisoner.

Such jokes are nothing unusual in Mexican revolutions. No one knows with certainty on whom he can count. You never know whether a friend on embracing you will not stab you in the back.

Don Jesus, with all his staff, fell into the hands of one of the petty chieftains who had been in Carranza's army and a dramatic episode occurred. The guerrilla telegraphed to the president, making up him a number of demands, which were not to be taken into consideration.

Carranza's Stabber to End.

The proud and stubborn Don Venustiano made no answer, whereupon the guerrilla began to shoot, one by one, the members of the staff of Don Jesus. After a second failure of the president to answer, a son of Don Jesus, and nephew to Don Venustiano, was shot. A final telegram likewise failed to move the iron will of Carranza, and his brother was also executed, some hours before the Carranza troops sent to free him arrived.

This blood curdling episode aroused sympathy only among the members of the president. A few small villages took the name of Don Jesus, but they have probably lost it again by this time. But while the friends of the government were mourning the martyr, the people, that great anonymous mob, was hammering out his story.

Part Master at Rustling.

It must be recalled that at the beginning of the revolution, while Don Venustiano was making war on the partisans of Huerta, in a number of states, Don Jesus had been in command of a division on the frontier of the United States.

It was contrary to a witness of his campaign, but people in Mexico say that this Carranza was a real Napoleon when it came to driving owners away from ranches and carrying off cattle. No animal would ever escape him. They all succumbed to his irresistible spirit on attack. In a very few of such campaigns he swept the territories under his control absolutely clean of cattle.

Then he would drive his prisoners, which numbered thousands and thousands, up across the Mexican frontier, and generously hand them over to buyers in the United States in exchange for some little strips of paper issued by the border.

Story of Jesus and Satan.

At this point, the Mexican story begins.

This story says that at that time there was war, not only in Mexico, but in the greater part of Europe as well. You may readily imagine the great number of guests who were being admitted to hell. What a lot of incendiaries of cities! And murderers!

Satan, who knows everything, got wind of Don Jesus' arrival and was anxious to make his acquaintance. As the devil has horns and a cloven foot, he was interested in getting a close up view of this terrible persecutor of horned and hoofed animals.

"Where is Jesus Carranza?" he shouted from his throne. Absolute silence. The man in question did not want to appear. He was so alarmed by the interest aroused. As the last of the guests received in hell consisted of so many lost souls, he tried to keep out of sight, hiding behind his comrades.

Turned Into a Cow.

Several small impostors, obeying orders from their master, went through the groups paying the missing person, in the same manner that bull boys go through the corridors of a hotel when they have to deliver a message.

"Mister Carranza! Mister Carranza!" Another long silence. And Satan, annoyed at this lack of respect, called one of his cleverest little devils.

"Turn him into a cow," he ordered him. Immediately the devil went and could run loose, fiery in color, began to flap loose through the throngs.

But there was one thing the devil could not escape me. . . . You cannot escape me. . . . That's how Satan discovered Don Jesus Carranza—Copyright, 1920, by Blasco Ibañez and the Chicago Tribune.

(Tomorrow St. Ibañez will show how the revolution, having brought nothing but harm and suffering to Mexico, which is worse off than it was ten years ago under Diaz.)
